Economic Outlook Asia-Pacific: The Comeback Year?

Economic conditions for Asia-Pacific are more uncertain than ever. Covid, supply chain constraints, energy disruptions and central bank policies are just a few examples shaping the economic landscape in Asia. What will be the combined impact of these and other forces on the economies in Asia? Which trends are critical, to shape your own forecast for the coming year?

During this webinar, we will look at the economic year ahead with Frederic Neumann, Managing Director and co-head of Asian Economics at HSBC in Hong Kong. Frederic has over 20 years experience in the region - focusing on both politics and economics - and is passionate about trends that are shaping Asia. Moderating the discussion is Martyn van Wensveen, Financial Services Advisory Partner at EY Hong Kong and member of the DutchCham Finance Committee.

About the speakers

Frederic Neumann, PhD, is Managing Director, Co-Head of Global Research Asia and Co-Head of Asian Economic Research, based in Hong Kong.
